Dear Sir:

I am the father of two wonderful children. My interest in health and nutrition began when they were born and I had to consider their well being. My quest for what foods to feed them led me instead to what to foods to avoid. My homework has uncovered widespread corruption involving greedy big business and our own government! Use of chemicals and additives in our food chain threatens our good health. Now we are facing the prospect of more uncertainty in the name of genetically engineered food products. Allow me to stand, as one man among many like thinking friends and parents, adamantly opposed to government blessing of genetic alteration of our food supply.

Thank you for your consideration. I trust that you and those who might decide or influence decisions, will decide against policies favoring genetically altered foods.
